

BARROW BETRAYED BY A PAL

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

THE second tabulation in the Literary Digest's straw vote on the New Deal, reported this week, shows that while the president's lead had dropped from two to one, to three to two, he is carrying three states that went to Hoover in 1932.

Rebel Chief Takes Mexican Garrison by a 5-Man Bluff

It Was An American Who Taught Guarjardo How to Play Poker

TOWN SURRENDERS

McMath Hears Another Episode in Life of Paul Edwards

Editor's Note: This is the eighth in a series of twelve letters written by Sam. McMath, formerly of Hope, on his experiences along the Mexican border.

Dear Mr. Norton:

While Pancho Villa was raising the devil throughout northern Mexico, another chief, Emilio Zapata, carried on a similar campaign south of Mexico City. People in the United States didn't hear a great deal about Zapata; his activities didn't bring him into conflict with our interests. But he was just as vicious as Villa and in some respects more spectacular. He was something of a dandy, caballer, and a man of tremendous power, a born leader of men, and possessed uncanny ability as a military strategist. But in the real human scale he ranked little above the savage.

After Huerta's usurpation of the presidency following Madero's assassination, the rebels united.

Man, every rebel faction in the region except Zapata, turned against him. The rebels united under Carranza's banner, and he became the leading role in the campaign. After the big victory, personal differences arose between Villa and Carranza. The bickering outraged Carranza's vanity. He proceeded to desert Carranza and start another revolution. Such has been the history of Mexico.

Villa was successful at first and for a while it looked as though Mexico's next dictator was going to be an ignorant cowboy drunk with power.

Pancho Villa Slips
Finally Obregon, Carranza's leading general, routed Villa's forces at the battle of Cobiya. It was during this battle that Obregon lost an arm. This defeat was the turning point in Villa's career, the event that started him on the road to oblivion.

With Villa on the run, overtures of peace were made to Zapata. Colonel Guarjardo of the Carranza army, enticed him into the village one day under a flag of truce for a parley. Either by evil intentions, or because he lost his temper, Guarjardo grabbed a revolver and shot through Zapata's chest with disastrous results. To Zapata, I mean, so far as I know the sword wasn't damaged.

In recognition of his noble deed, Guarjardo was made a general and sent to northern Coahuila. He became famous as the man who killed Zapata. He was feared by many and admired by others.

Guarjardo had ambitions and secret plans of his own. He had visions of becoming Mexico's dictator. He wanted, was defeated, and became a fugitive. With a small band of faithful followers he sought refuge in the Sierra mountains. Cavalry was sent out from time to time to catch him; airplanes patrolled the district in efforts to locate his camp. But Guarjardo had apparently vanished into thin air.

My friend, Paul Edwards, had known Guarjardo during his (Paul's) military days. Paul gave him permission to hide on El Tule ranch. The old buzzard was there during my first visit to El Tule, but I didn't know it. Paul had promised Guarjardo that he wouldn't divulge the secret of his whereabouts to a soul. And he didn't. That's Paul Edwards.

Shortly after I left El Tule and returned to Texas Adolfo de la Huerta's revolution flared at Vera Cruz. Adolfo is not to be confused with Victoriano Huerta who had served as provisional president until kicked out by Carranza. I don't think the two men were related. Victoriano died in a military prison at Ft. Bliss, Texas while awaiting trial for attempting to foment another revolution while residing in this country. Anyway, after Adolfo de la Huerta's flare-up, the devil was busy in poor old Mexico again.

A Fussy Rebel

People in northern Mexico lived in dread of Guarjardo. He was hourly expected to swoop down on any of those little walled towns along the frontier. But Guarjardo was fussy.

Roosevelt's Lead Shrinks to 3 to 2 in Digest's Poll

Of First 9 States Reporting, However, Maine Alone "Kicks"

PENNSYLVANIA BEST

Keystone State Went for Hoover—But Now 64.13 % for Roosevelt

Roosevelt's first week 2 to 1 lead shrinks to about a 3 to 2 ratio as nearly 200,000 votes are reported in the second week's tabulation of The Literary Digest's Nation-wide poll on the New Deal, the returns of which appear in this week's issue of the magazine.

195,454 votes are reported tallied this week. Of these 120,474 vote in favor of Roosevelt's policies and 74,980 vote against them.

In the first week's returns the President received a confidence vote of 66.19 per cent of the total ballots tallied while the current count reduces the affirmative vote in his favor to 61.64 per cent.

Go for Roosevelt

First votes from the six additional States of Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Vermont are reported this week. Four of these states—Connecticut, Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont—voted for Hoover in 1932, and Connecticut, New Hampshire and Vermont are now shown in favor of the Rooseveltian acts and policies.

Of the nine states so far reported, Maine is the only dissenter on the New Deal and votes against the President by the close majority of 50.87 per cent, with only 2,404 ballot tallied to date.

The shrinkage of votes favorable to the president is traceable largely to the returns from New York state. 41,740 votes, or nearly one-half of the entire returns, came from New York state and give the president a "Yes" vote of 63.59 per cent this week, as compared to a 67.20 per cent state vote last week.

Pennsylvania, which voted for Hoover in 1932, increases its approval for the New Deal giving the president 64.13 per cent of the 42,571 ballots counted now from the state as against 63.55 per cent the previous week.

Pennsylvania gives a larger "Yes" vote to the question "Do You Approve On the Whole the Acts and Policies of Roosevelt's First Year?" than any other state from which returns have been received so far.

With 27,151 ballots now tallied from New Jersey, the president shows a slight gain in confidence from 57.28 per cent last week to 58.16 per cent in the current tabulation.

Holds 82 Per Cent

Of those poll voters who voted for Roosevelt in the 1932 election, 81.95 per cent approve his acts and policies while 18.05 per cent of his former adherents express disapproval.

37.21 per cent of those who voted for Hoover in 1932 express their approval of the president's policies while 62.79 per cent of the former Hoover voters are against the New Deal.

The previous week's returns showed 41.23 per cent of the 1932 Hoover voters in favor of the president's policies.

To squelch persistent rumors about the poll, Arthur S. Draper, the editor of The Literary Digest, issues a categorical denial that the magazine had been requested to suspend publication of poll returns until after the congressional elections or that Eastman Farley had ordered that copies of The Literary Digest containing poll returns be kept out of the mail.

A comparison of the voting percentages of the three states reported in the first and second tabulation is:

This week Last week
New York 63.59 Pct. 67.20 Pct.
New Jersey 58.16 Pct. 57.28 Pct.
Pennsylvania 64.13 Pct. 63.55 Pct.

"The abrupt drop in the 'Yes' vote for the New Deal," The Literary Digest states editorially, "may not, of course, mean anything more serious than a chance fluctuation in the piling up of the massive statistics incidental to the distribution of 15,000,000 ballots on a hotly controversial question."

No Adjustment of CWA Wage Issue

Claims of Skilled Employees Not to Be Recognized by U. S.

LITTLE ROCK, (AP)—Retractive wage adjustments for former Civil Works Administration (CWA) employees will not be made, Floyd Sharp, acting Emergency Relief Administrator (ERA), announced Thursday.

Sharp's statement was issued after a ruling by Federal Administrator Hopkins upon claims filed by skilled workers who alleged they had not received the wage scale set up under the Civil Works Administration.

Under the ruling, these workers will have no recourse.

Local physicians, with the aid of Miss Flora Cotton, county health nurse, will be in charge.

1 Shot as Troops Fire on Strikers

Rumored One Killed, Five Wounded at Toledo Auto Company

TOLEDO, Ohio.—(AP)—One man was shot by National Guardsmen here late Thursday when a second volley of rifle-bullets followed an initial burst from the guns aimed over the heads of rioters at the strike-ridden Electric Auto-Lite plant.

The man shot, William Ebel, was wounded in the thigh.

An unverified report said one was killed and five were wounded.

A second man fell as the shooting continued. He was reported dying from a wound in the jugular vein as he was rushed to a hospital.

Strikers Besiege Plant

TOLEDO, Ohio.—(AP)—Adj. Gen. Frank D. Henderson ordered 700 Ohio National Guardsmen into Toledo Wednesday night to patrol the area around the Electric Auto-Lite company plant where 1,500 workers are held prisoners by 3,000 strikers and sympathizers.

Shortly before General Henderson's order was given, company guards set up machine guns and trained them on a steel gate which the rioting strikers had torn from its hinges. A new shipment of tear gas bombs was received at 9 Wednesday night and police and deputies began firing the bombs into the crowd of sympathizers. Several shots were heard.

The 1,500 workers in the plant prepared to sleep in the factory building as the strikers showed no signs of moving away or letting up on the rock barrage which they have laid down for more than seven hours.

Vatican Denies It, But Spain Believes Paris Report

MADRID, Spain.—(AP)—The newspaper La Libertad Thursday published a report from Paris that former King Alfonso is planning to seek an annulment from Queen Victoria.

Vatican City advices termed the report ridiculous.

From Paris, however, came word that there was some foundation for the rumor.

Dillinger's Dreary Hide-Out

This dreary, abandoned lead mine house, near Cuba City, in southwestern Wisconsin, was the prison of Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul kidnap victim, and also the hideout of John Dillinger after his Little Bohemia, Wis., escape. U. S. agents have found. Forty federal officers, acting on a tip, spent three weeks searching the area to find the clues on which they base this information.

Peace-Maker Gets Hit With an Axe

Lent Powell, 27, Severely Cut in Family Fight Near Ozan

Struck in the head with a double-bladed axe, Lent Powell, 27, of near Ozan, was brought to Hope Thursday morning suffering from a compound fracture of the skull following an altercation with Jasper Hoover over a pound of coffee.

The Hoover and Powell family live in the same house, along with Powell's father, R. P. Powell. There had been family trouble since last December, it was said here by the injured man.

Thursday morning the elder Powell and Hoover argued over a pound of coffee. It led to a fight between the two. It was said that Hoover started after a shotgun, but the elder Powell beat him to it, throwing the gun out of a window.

"Hoover then went into the yard, seized the axe and started back into the house after my father," Powell said.

"In attempting to prevent any serious injury, I ran between them and was struck in the head with the axe by Hoover," Powell said.

Patmos students awarded certificates.

Barrow and Bonnie, Inseparable in Life, Are Buried Apart

Inseparable in life, shooting their way through robberies and police ambuscades, they were on their way to separate funerals.

Kecnan Praises Police

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Joseph B. Kecnan, assistant United States Attorney General who was drafted to head the federal government's campaign against gangsters and racketeers, declared Thursday:

"The acclaim of the entire nation should be accorded the police officers who brought about the end of the careers of Clyde Barrow and Bon-doe."

Kecnan is enroute to Washington by plane after an address Wednesday night before the women's club meeting at Hot Springs.

Sheriff Describes Trap

ARCADIA, La.—(AP)—Sheriff Henderson Jordan of the Louisiana parish gave The Associated Press the following exclusive account of the Barrow-Parker killings:

"I have been working on this case about six weeks. I received a tip that Clyde and Bonnie were coming through the lower part of Bienville through the lower part of Bienville of Natchitoches parish. We began checking on this. I put an undercover man on the job. I had him stationed in Shreveport."

"Getting a tip that Barrow and Parker figured on robbing the First National Bank of Arcadia, I got in touch with Frank Hamer, ex-captain of Texas rangers, and R. F. Alcorn, Dallas county deputy sheriff. I had to get someone who knew Barrow and Parker."

"Thursday I received a tip they would be on he Jamestown-Sailes road Wednesday morning. With Captain Hamer, Alcorn, Ted Hinton, Dallas deputy and P. M. Oakley, one of my Bienville parish deputies, I drove out on the road and picked out a place to wait for them."

"We chose a natural barricade at the top of a little hill and we hid beside the road and waited."

"Alcorn, who knew Barrow and Bonnie Parker sighted their car about a quarter of a mile away. When the car got to within 100 yards coming up the grade, Alcorn said:

"That's them boys."

"About that time, the car which was meeting a truck, slowed down. We hollered to Barrow to halt. We were willing to give him a chance. They went for their guns and we let them have it."

"In the car we found three sub-machine guns, two automatic sawed-off shotguns, four .45 caliber automatic pistols, two .38 caliber automatic pistols and one .45 caliber revolver, also a large quantity of ammunition."

Bodies Towed to Town

Officers towed Barrow's car with the bodies into Arcadia. Throngs of curious residents, estimated at 2,000—came to view the car.

Barrow came from Benton, La., on

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

Congress, Not Brain Trust, Is Source of Radical Bills . . . Roosevelt Jests at Death . . . Ritchie Would Rather Be Governor Than Senator . . . Call Hoepfel "Hopple."

By RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON.—If any congressional campaign this year get away with the story that the existing order is menaced by a radical "Brain Trust," they'll be establishing one more tribute to voter gullibility.

The record shows that nearly all really radical proposals for legislation came out of Congress itself. The administration and its brain trusters find suppression of them one of its toughest tasks.

Examples:
The 30-hour week bill is the child of Representative William P. Connery of Massachusetts, ex-actor, ex-soldier. Connery pushed the bill via the petition route, when the administration turned thumbs down.

The compulsory cotton control act was introduced and promoted by the ankle-kick brothers, senator and representative from Alabama. This, most radical phase of AAA's program, was "abandoned" to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and Assistant Secretary Tugwell, but demanded by cotton growers.

The bonus measure was purely congressional. So are the unemployment insurance and old age pension bills, on which Roosevelt holds back. Proposals for a ten-billion-dollar public works program came from Senator La Follette of Wisconsin.

The Johnson act aimed at public utilities was conceived and born on Capitol Hill. Any silver legislation passed will have been high-pressed through by the silver bloc.

Congress wrote a more radical "tax bill" than the White House had sought. The Frazier-Lemke bill, which would have the government take over $9,000,000,000 in farm mortgages, and the McLeod bill for paying off closed bank deposits are purely congressional products.

So don't let campaigning congressmen kid you. It's true the stock market act can be called a "Brain Trust" reform measure. But it was put through by Senator Fletcher of Florida and Representative Farnsworth of Texas, two elderly, conservative committee chairmen.

Roosevelt Joke
The president was having conferences with two friends, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau and Henry Toomb, the Warm Springs architect.

"Mr. President," he was told, "Henry is on the phone."
"Which one?" demanded F. D.
"Henry the morgue or Henry the tomb?"

Governor Is Ritchie Choice
Sometimes it's hard to decide whether to be governor of your state or a U. S. senator. Usually, you're a governor first and a senator afterward and the process is seldom reversed, senatorial honors being considered higher.

When a man insists on being governor, though he could be a senator if he liked, there's nearly always an inside reason, such as that which explains Gov. Albert C. Ritchie's recent announcement of candidacy for a fifth term as Maryland's chief executive.

Ritchie could have had the senatorial nomination for the asking and there was no question that he could defeat Senator Goldsborough, the Republican incumbent, whereas he faces a stiff gubernatorial fight from Mayor Howard Jackson of Baltimore.

But to give up the governorship is to give up control of state patronage—unless you control the new governor. Ritchie would have had to surrender political power to Jackson and Senator Millard Tydings, his rivals.

His federal patronage as senator would have been meager. Ritchie isn't much of a New Dealer and Tydings already has taken the cream off.

An inside phase of the Wisconsin senatorial situation involves the same point. Postmaster General Jim Farley secretly suggested that La Follette progressives and Wisconsin Democrats get together and re-elect both Senator Bob La Follette and the present Democratic governor. Farley may have been without guide in this, but anxiety of his party in Wisconsin to elect another senator and make the state Democratic is only exceeded by the yen of the La Follettes to control the governorship.

The La Follette power also depends on control of the state machine. Hence La Follette plans for a third party.

A classic example was that of Huey Long, who, elected senator, hung on

YOUR CHILDREN

Good Teeth Depend On Well-Balanced Diet—Feed Bone-Building Foods to Growing Child

A dentist showed me the chart of a mouth in which all the lower teeth were marching southeast by east and southwest by west, a perfect drunken mob of teeth, crowding, pushing, jostling each other, looking like the work-shirkers they were.

And all because the captains had taken leave, the captains being the "six-year" molars.

They had tired of too much responsibility and had gone all to pieces under the strain; so they had departed the way of most six-year molars early in the game, and popped into the refuse can at the dentist's—leaving the cohorts of incisors, bicuspids and other molars to carry on without them. But it couldn't be done.

These six-year molars are double teeth. They come in before the first teeth are out of the mouth (six teeth back from the middle front) and thus are often mistaken for them. But they are "permanent" teeth, although too often in name only.

If these teeth begin to decay, they should be filled at once. If they go on decaying and are lost, as often happens during adolescence, the whole alignment of teeth is destroyed. The "fitting" of upper and lower teeth together, or articulation, is thrown out of balance. Points strike where they shouldn't, the mouth tries to adjust itself to a new manner of chewing and grinding, and in a remarkably short time the other teeth will be crooked.

All of which is bad. A tooth was made to do its work standing up straight, not on its side, or at an angle. Once at an angle the pressure of chewing will increase the slant. Then trouble begins. We see only the crooked crowns, if we see them at all, but if we could see the long, crooked roots fighting for leaning room in the jawbone, we might not wonder so much about trouble later on.

Save Six-Year Molars
The six-year molars are keystone teeth. They need to be saved. And the best way to save teeth is to prevent decay. It is cheapest, too.

Cleanliness is only part of it. New dentistry accents food; good teeth depend on diet and general health.

As to cleanliness, all teeth should, indeed must, be brushed up and down. The brush should reach into every crevice. And brushing must be done morning, night and after meals.

Diet is important because it must include bone-building, or tooth-building material, chiefly lime and phosphates.

Milk contains them in large quantities. Don't give up milk when children are past babyhood. A glass per child with each meal is right if parents can possibly afford it.

Vegetables and Fruit
Green vegetables and fruits are rich in materials. I guess we all know that now. And, of course, all little children, or weak children, need cod-liver oil through most of the year.

Children should not have all soft foods. They need to chew, and chew hard. It strengthens the teeth and jawbone.

Watch all teeth and keep them filled, even the first ones. Keep the mouth straight by holding on to the six-year molars. It is cheap to have teeth examined or to have a tiny crevice filled; it is expensive to wait until real cavities form.

Until recent years, lighthouses, built for the purpose of saving lives, caused the death of hundreds of birds every year; the steady white light of the old fashioned beacon lured the birds from afar and their bodies were dashed to pieces against the glass.

Birds helped in the discovery of America. Columbus altered his course to follow the line of flight of migrating birds, the sighting of which gave the discouraged sailors the heart to go on.

like grim death to the Louisiana governorship until his term expired and he had his handpicked successor on the job.

It's "Hopple"
Representative John H. Hoepfel of Arcadia, California, keeps telling he's most mispronounced name in Congress.

It isn't "hoonle," "hoepel," "hep-ber" or "hopel." It's "hopple."

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

To Get Tan Without Sunburn Use Lotions

Now is the time to decide what you're going to do about the care of your complexion this summer. Are you going in for a ruddy, deeply tanned skin or do you prefer to keep it as white as it is now? Whatever your decision, there are certain beauty treatments to follow if you expect to look presentable when vacation days are over and it's time to get back into town clothes.

Remember that a nice coat of deep tan is perfectly beautiful and quite desirable to most women, particularly if they go in for pure white dresses. However, do not confuse tan with sunburn. There's nothing attractive about skin that has been burned until it is as red as the proverbial lobster. Furthermore, burning is decidedly bad for the skin. So, in order that you may tan without burning, lay in a supply of good suntan oils and lotions before you start for a holiday in the sunshine.

Apply your favorite suntan lotion generously to those parts of the body exposed to the elements. It will keep your skin from burning, but will not prevent tanning.

Don't stay in the sun too long the first day. Half an hour a day should be enough for the first five days. After that you can increase the time to one hour. After the first ten days, hours and hours in the sun should not hurt you—that is, providing you keep on using the suntan lotion or oil.

Keep Skin Well Oiled During Hot Months

Women who for some reason or other don't go in for suntanned complexions should take special steps to prevent their skins from being exposed to the sun's rays.

If you want to keep your skin the same shade as it is now, get wide-brimmed hats, not only for beach wear and sports but for street and daytime occasions. Wide brims are very smart this season and you're sure to be able to find several that are flattering to you. When you've stocked your wardrobe with wide-brimmed bonnets, consider an enormous beach umbrella. It's just the thing to sit under when you aren't swimming.

If, on the other hand, you want tan but dread the thought of freckles, get one of the new lotions or creams that are made to prevent the little brown spots. Of course, there are skins that will freckle in spite of everything and if yours happens to come in that category, there isn't much that you can do about it—except to take freckles philosophically. After all, they are rather attractive on some types.

The main thing to remember in the summer is that the skin should be kept well oiled. Use nourishing cream at night and suntan oil while you're in the sunshine.

Washington

Rev. Harrell preached two interesting sermons at the local Methodist church Sunday.

The senior class of Washington high school, Mrs. C. C. Stuart, and Miss Kathryn Holt attended "senior day" of Henderson State Teachers College on Friday of last week.

Mrs. Ella Gold and daughter, Jo-Ella Margaret Pruitt and Mrs. Joe Arterbury spent the week end in Kilgore, Texas.

Miss Margaret Robinson, who has been in New York City for the past few years is expected home this week for an extended visit with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. T. J. Robinson, and to attend the Trimble-Etter wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Madison Wilson, Mrs. M. H. Stuart and Mrs. Melson Frazier spent Monday in DeQueen visiting relatives.

Miss Fannie Jane Elmore left Friday for a two weeks' visit in and around Arkadelphia.

Mrs. Elizabeth Berkshire has returned from a visit to points in Texas. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Butler had an week end guests, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Long of Little Rock.

The ladies of the Baptist missionary society will serve ice cream and cake on the court house lawn Saturday evening and night May 26. Come and bring a friend and have a good time.

Miss Virginia Stewart has returned after a pleasant visit with Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Prince and family in DeQueen.

Miss Mary Pilkinton has returned from a visit with her sister, Miss Lewis and brother, James, who are attending Henderson State Teachers college in Arkadelphia.

Eugene Pinegar and family have moved out to their farm for the summer.

Paul Dudley has moved his saw mill back to Washington and is sawing lumber.

Warren Finley and Harvey Lee Turner left Wednesday for a visit with relatives in California.

Mrs. Fannie Olds and Miss Rosa Wallace, former residents of Washington, spent last week visiting friends here, remaining over from Mother's Day. They are now living in Shreveport, La.

Shover Springs

The farmers of this community certainly did appreciate the rain which fell late Sunday afternoon.

THE NEW BEAT

Your Health

By DR. MORRIS FISHBIE

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

You may be able to exist without food from 30 to 40 days and without water from five to seven days, but you can't do without oxygen for even five minutes.

If you are deprived of oxygen for even one minute, you would be in a serious situation and if this should be extended only slightly, you would become unconscious and life would end. The margin of oxygen reserve in your body is so narrow that it is easily crossed, and yet it is a margin between life and death.

Anything that interrupts breathing is a menace to life. Your whole breathing mechanism, moreover, is so complicated that various types of interruption are possible.

There is that portion of the brain which controls the automatic character of breathing; there are the nerves in the spine to the muscles that are involved in breathing; there are the passages through which the air flows, and the lungs themselves.

Anything that blocks the passages or that breaks the pathways along which the stimulus to breathing moves may bring about death. Therefore, our whole lives are spent in getting sufficient oxygen.

The period for which anyone can hold his breath without discomfort is apparently limited to 45 seconds. If, however, you prepare yourself for holding your breath by breathing slowly and deeply for a certain length of time, you may be able to do without breathing for anywhere from five to six minutes.

If, in addition to that, the air you breathe is supplemental with extra oxygen, you can extend the period without the motions of breathing to almost 15 minutes.

It has been pointed out that the sprint swimmers in recent Olympic games breathed oxygen before entering the races and had a considerable advantage because of that fact.

When you exert effort you breathe more oxygen than when at rest. At rest you breathe about one-fourth quart of oxygen a minute. While walking briskly, you breathe about a quart a minute, and during heavy work or violent exercise from one and one-half to two quarts a minute.

The most oxygen that you can store up in your body is about three quarts. Therefore, the marathon runner in question is using up his oxygen about as fast as he can take it in.

However, nature provides the body with factors of safety so that it is possible to run up an oxygen debt. Trained athletes are able to run up this debt as high as 15 quarts of oxygen.

These are the athletes who are so well trained that they do not have to worry about getting a second wind, since their oxygen is adequate before they start.

Getting a second wind is the development of enough oxygen reserve to carry on activity without discomfort.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sore and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul. Your skin often breaks out in blotches. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and on." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for a Little Liver Pills. Look for the name, Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Beware a substitute. 25-cent drug stores. ©1934 C. M. Co.

Under the Wide and SPREADING SKY

SUMMER is the season when the possibilities for enjoyment are multiplied about you. Under the wide and spreading sky there is room for much happiness.

You don't need great wealth, and you don't need to fasten all your hopes for happiness on a short vacation. Whether you live in the city, with all its modern means of tempering the climate to your needs, or in the country where the good earth responds so beautifully to your touch—there is much to do, pleasantly and happily.

But there is art in enjoyment. You should dress properly for each occasion. You should have within easy reach the things that make hospitality inviting and gracious. You should have the means of refreshing and beautifying your person and improving your sense of well-being. You should be comfortable.

It is not so hard to do all this. It is not accomplished in one frenzied and expensive effort. Comforts should grow about your home, as flowers and fruits blossom and ripen.

Read the advertisements, and acquire the things you need from what you learn there. Fresh light summer wear. Foods and beverages that keep crisp and cool in modern refrigerators. Gas and electricity that cook and brighten without heating your rooms. Electric fans, perhaps. Soaps, cosmetics, and heaps of fresh towels for frequent showers.

And read in the advertisements where to go and what to do in order to make Summer the golden season of your life.

Mrs. Charles Haynes was hostess at a beautifully appointed one o'clock luncheon on Wednesday on the lawn in the rear of the Haynes home on W. 2nd St. The guests were members of the W. M. S. of the Baptist church. The luncheon tables were arranged under the trees surrounded by borders of shrubs and lovely flowers, with the hollyhocks in the background standing like sentinels on guard for the lovely colorful array of blooming annuals. Each table was centered with vases of roses. Following a tempting luncheon the guests adjourned to the living room where a most interesting examination

Built Up Strength By Taking Cardui

Here's her own account of how Mrs. T. W. Ford, of Greer, S. C., was benefited by taking Cardui: "I suffered a great deal from weakness in my back and pains in my side and felt so miserable," she writes. "I read of Cardui and decided to try it. I felt better after I took my first bottle, so kept on taking it as I felt such a need of strength, and it helped me so much."

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

and review of Una Roberts Lawrence's book "The Word of Thy Testimony" was conducted by the circle leader, Mrs. Haynes and a most inspiring devotion was given by Mrs. W. C. Andres, followed by a prayer by Mrs. Hugh Jones. After the regular routine of business the meeting was dismissed with prayer by Mrs. Andres. Guests other than the members were Mrs. Jennie McWilliams and Mrs. Sid Henry.

Mrs. P. F. Witherspoon who has been the guest of relatives and friends in the city for the past week left Wednesday for her home in Little Rock.

An outstanding party of the week was the bridge party given by Mrs. L. W. Young, Mrs. George Meehan, Mrs. E. P. Stewart and Mrs. A. J. Neighbors on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Young on Hervey street. A quantity of Dorothy Perkins roses and sweet peas adorned the room and the pleasing color note of pink was still further emphasized in the bridge accessories and refreshments. Sixteen tables were arranged with the favors going to Mrs. Terrell Cornelius, Mrs. E. M. McWilliams and Mrs. Arthur Swanke. Punch was served during the progress of the games, following which the hostess, assisted by Mrs. George Robinson, Mrs. Franklin Horton, Mrs. Kline Snyder, Miss Miriam Carlton, Miss Frances White and Miss Margaret Taylor served a delightful ice course. Out of town guests were Mrs. P. F. Witherspoon of Little Rock and Mrs. T. Walker of El Paso, Texas.

Mrs. Fionnie Wood of Dallas, Texas, is spending the week visiting with relatives in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Dulin Sr., who have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Dulin Jr. will leave Thursday for their home in Little Rock.

Mrs. J. S. Kolb has returned to her home in Clarksville after a visit with her sister, Miss Elmina Fontaine.

Adults who wish to make the trip are asked to call 225 or 427-W for reservations in order that transportation may be provided for. All young people are requested to meet at the corner of the First Baptist church Tuesday evening between 7 and 8 o'clock where care will be available for the trip. Everybody is invited to take this interesting trip which will take them through Hawaii, Spain and other interesting countries. Money made on this tour will help send delegates to the Petit Jean Conference on Mt. Petit Jean at Morrilton.

Mrs. Joe M. Houston and daughter, Martha are Thursday visitors in Texarkana.

As a special compliment to Mrs. Henry D. Pate, of Roswell, N. M., Mrs. George Hosmer entertained with three tables of bridge at her home, 420 Edgewood avenue, Wednesday evening. Lovely spring flowers were attractively arranged throughout the home and lent a pleasing color note of orchid and green. Attractive prizes went to Mrs. Henry Haynes and Miss Avis Jones and the honoree was presented with a dainty remembrance gift. At the close of the game the hostess, assisted by her mother Mrs. J. P. Hosmer and Miss Emma Green served a delicious ice course with angel food cake furthering the chosen color scheme.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Trimble and daughter, Carolyn, left Wednesday for El Dorado where they will spend the week end with relatives.

Debate Crowd Is Partial to Aimee

Puts Rev. Mr. Bogard to Rout in Closing Arkansas Revival

LITTLE ROCK.—The long-anticipated debate between Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson, Los Angeles evangelist, and the Rev. Ben M. Bogard, pastor of Antioch Missionary Baptist church, took place Tuesday night in the North Little Rock tabernacle, and an overwhelming majority of the nearly 7,000 persons who paid admissions to attend voted at the end in favor of the woman evangelist.

A standing vote was called for at the conclusion of the two-hour debate, and estimates of disinterested observers were that three-fourths to four-fifths of those voting were in support of Mrs. McPherson's position. The subject of debate was "divine healing," stated in this fashion: "Resolved, That Divine Healing and Miracles as Manifest in the Bible Ended with the Apostolic Ages."

The crowd was uproarious, unruly at times, but inclined to laugh derisively more often than to boo. Despite the appeals of Mrs. McPherson and theirate expostulations of Mr. Bogard, they constantly interrupted the progress of the debate, particularly when the Baptist minister was speaking, by roaring their own opinions, laughing, and cheering.

After the hubbub had quieted somewhat, Mr. Bogard announced: "If you want to turn this into a razzing bee, I've got a thousand friends here, and, before God, I'll call on them to heckle her."

Again he referred to "my three thousand supporters here," (which started a bedlam of dissenting shouts) and called upon all those present who supported his position to signify their approval. He turned toward the choir section on the left of the platform, which appeared to be a solid section, and those seated there responded with a roar of approval.

Mr. Bogard addressed himself frequently to hecklers, telling them "you show yourselves to be donkeys," and advising others to "keep your lip out of this," and announcing emphatically, "you can't tell me what to say, get it?"

Mrs. McPherson left Little Rock immediately after the debate for Wichita, Kan., where she will begin another revival.

REBEL CHIEF TAKEN

When he finally emerged from seclusion, he went straight to El Tule headquarters to discuss the forthcoming campaign with Paul Edwards.

His plan was to first capture Zaragoza, municipality in the northern district of Coahuila, being equivalent to the county seat in our states. Zaragoza is a little inland town connected with Allende, the nearest railroad point by tram road. A garrison of about 80 men was stationed there to protect the treasurer and other officials.

Guarjardo figured that if he took Zaragoza first, robbed the treasury and the arsenal, at least a portion of the troops stationed there would desert and join him. A lone soldier doesn't care particularly who or what he fights for so long as he is fed and permitted to loot.

Paul advised against taking Zaragoza by assault. He submitted another plan which Guarjardo proceeded to carry out. The general and Paul and four privates got in Paul's car and left the ranch late in the afternoon. The rest of Guarjardo's men were ordered to follow on horseback. Darkness had fallen when the car reached the outskirts of Zaragoza. Paul got out and walked into town alone. He went to the military commander's headquarters and informed that worthy that General Guarjardo had the town surrounded and was threatening to take it by assault. If the commander would surrender peaceably a lot of bloodshed would be spared. If the commander would agree to this, he (Paul) would immediately inform the general who was impatiently awaiting a reply.

The Town Surrenders
Said the commander: "Go tell General Guarjardo that I have always been one of his admirers and desire nothing more than to be counted one of his friends; Zaragoza is his."

Paul then demanded as evidence of good faith, that the garrison be ordered to stack arms. This was done. When the men were informed that the town was being surrendered to General Guarjardo, and a dismiss order given, they scattered like a flock of chickens suddenly released from a coop. And that's how Zaragoza was captured by General Guarjardo, Paul Edwards and four privates.

De la Huerta's revolution proved a mere flash in the pan. It soon petered out. He fled to this country and is now living at Los Angeles.

Guarjardo's coup brought no lasting gain to that restless man. He was soon defeated and forced to take to the hills again. In a few weeks he was captured and ended his career after the manner of so many Mexican military men—facing a firing squad.

BARROW BETRAYED

Tuesday and passed through Bihland, La., about 4 o'clock and again Wednesday morning, Jordan said. Jordan's deputy, Paul M. Oakley were waiting at the top of the hill with the Texans.

Hamer, one of the best known peace officers in Texas, and his aides, had pieced together a map of the high-ways Barrow was in the habit of using. Several weeks ago they barely missed the outlaw and his companion in this same section.

Since then the officers have been waiting. Barrow had been lured into north-west Louisiana through arrangement with officers, for what he believed was a rendezvous with an underworld friend near Ringgold.

A relative of an escaped convict and former member of Barrow's Southwest gang, working with the officers, had promised him protection at his home.

into a parking lot, at the plant and began smashing workers' automobiles. Deputies dispersed them with tear gas. At that hour J. Arthur Minch, vice president of the company, estimated damage to the plant property at $75,000.

The crowd scattered as fire apparatus screeched up to the gates, fearing that firemen had been called to drench them. Firemen went into the plant and found that a small blaze in the shipping room had been put out by employees with hand extinguishers.

At 9:30 E. H. Dunnigan, Labor Board conciliator, was taken into the plant in a police car, tears streaming down his face from the effects of the gas bombs. He said he had discussed a truce with labor leaders and wanted to talk with company officials.

Among the casualties incident to the rock-throwing and firing during the evening was Miss Chella Johnson, factory telephone operator, who was struck in the arm by a stray bullet. Six persons, three patrolmen, had been treated at hospitals for injuries. Dozens of others received hurts of a minor character.

DOHERTY INFLATES

198,865.90 as the amount of write up in the fixed capital of Natural Gas & Fuel Corp. when it was organized in 1920, and a further item of $298,846 in a sale of stock, to give the total of $497,711.90 total write-up.

Indicating Cities Service control, Lundvall said that on December 31, 1930, Cities Service owned 72.8 per cent of the Arkansas Natural Gas Corporation's no par common; 32.4 per cent of the six per cent cumulative preferred; 3.3 per cent of the class A common, and all outstanding six per cent bonds. Cities Service total investment was $18,415,997.05.

Lundvall disclosed that Cities Service never received any dividends up to December 30, 1930, on the common, but it regularly received dividends on the preferred, which were sufficient for return on the cost of the investment of 5.33 per cent in 1928, 11.71 in 1929, and 7.35 in 1930.

$100,000,000 Allegedly Gained
Testimony that Cities Service Company received $100,000,000 in extra cash for further expansion by thus merging and consolidating its companies, but still retained control of them "with a smaller investment and in some instances without any investment," also was recorded in the inquiry.

Lundvall produced statistics to show what he said was a $35,577,282 inflation of securities held by Cities Service, and a net write-up of $70,020,529 in both plant and investment account. Lundvall said these inflations and write-ups were reflected in increasing the company's surplus.

Robert Burns, Cities Service lawyer, said the deduction that the write-ups were thus unfairly reflected was unjustified, and that valuations prior to write-up "no way reflected the real

Hearing Thursday on College Audit

Comptroller Smith to Take Testimony at Monticello

LITTLE ROCK.—State Comptroller Griffin Smith will go to Monticello Thursday to conduct a hearing on an audit of financial affairs of the Fourth District A. & M. College—if anyone wants to be heard in explanation of facts developed by the audit he said Wednesday.

The audit was started several weeks ago after petitions signed by more than half the students had been filed with Governor Futrell, charging President Horsfall and John W. Richardson of Warren, a member of the Board of Trustees, with administrative mismanagement.

A preliminary report filed with the governor by the comptroller last week showed that Richardson had received from the institution since 1928 more than $3,000 consisting largely of expenses and per diem for trips from Warren to Monticello and to Little Rock. Other payments to Richardson were for livestock, hay, feed and other articles sold to the school.

Mr. Smith said he would invite Mr. Richardson, President Horsfall, and other members of the board, or any value of the property." Burns said the accounting procedure of the company was carefully supervised and that "no improper or undisclosed inflation of property accounts has been reflected in the consolidated balance sheets."

Robert E. Healy, commission attorney, developed from Lundvall that the write-ups, together with changes in the financial set-ups of companies merged and consolidated by Cities Service, enabled that company to get in excess of $100,000,000 in cash, thus reducing investment in the companies, and yet to retain control.

interested parties to give any information they care to in addition to or in explanation of the various transactions covered by the audit. A summary of the audit will probably be filed with the governor on Friday or Saturday, Mr. Smith said, but the audit will be held open until the end of the present fiscal year, June 30, for inclusion of routine transactions up to that date.

A committee of the Board of Trustees, with Circuit Judge Patrick Henry of Monticello, presiding as an unofficial public observer, conducted a two day public hearing at the school last week, at which several score students, a dozen faculty members and President Horsfall testified concerning administrative affairs of the school.

Scores Hurt in Minneapolis Strike

Congressman Is Jailed in Riots

With more than two score injured and martial law threatened, rioting continues in the Minneapolis truck drivers' strike. Here is shown a clash between a special police squad and strikers who attempted to halt delivery of perishable food at the market district. The photo was snapped as deputies arrived to reinforce police in quelling warring pickets. Note the second man beyond the automobile hood with hands raised to ward off the blow. Five thousand drivers who walked out have been joined by 35,000 building trades craftsmen.

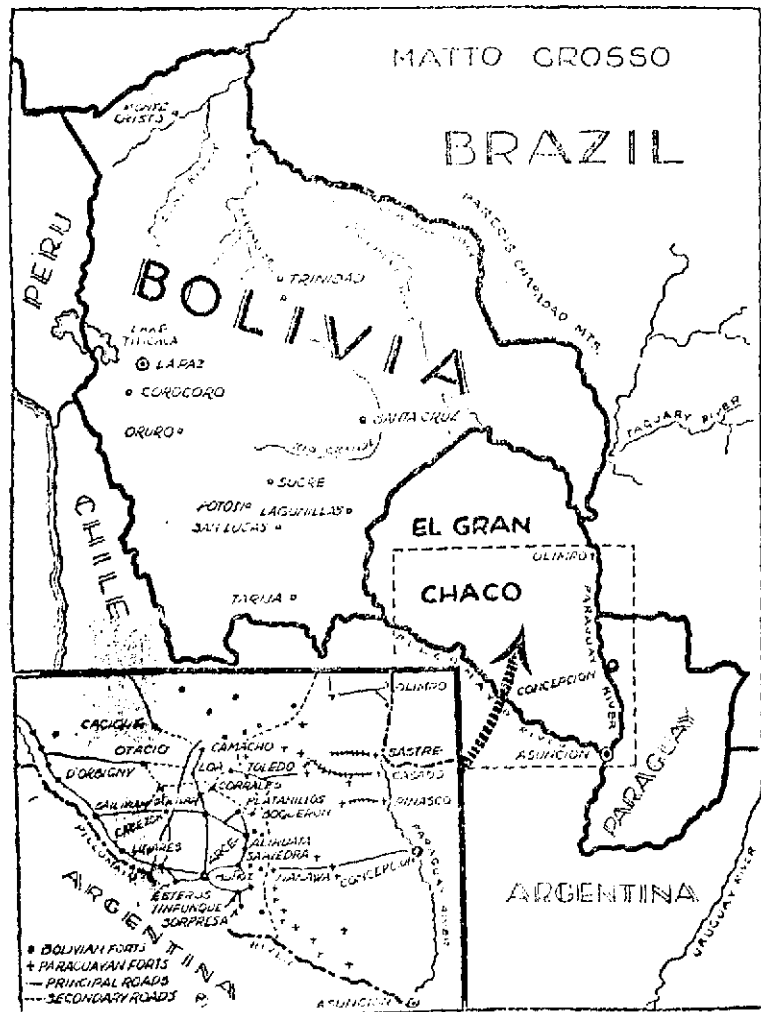

Again afoul of the law, Representative F. H. Shumaker, Minnesota farmer-laborite, is shown in Minneapolis jail, after his arrest during a riot of striking truck drivers. Shumaker, charged with resisting arrest, declared he had taken a broom handle he was carrying away from a striker, to "prevent trouble."

Idle Acres Should Be Used for Food

County Agent Stanley Makes Selected List of Field Crops

Many acres of idle land in Hempstead county may be put to use by growing field crops for food and preserving purposes. Frank Stanley, county agent, urges in the following suggestions:

Two acres will furnish fresh corn for table use meal and hominy.

Cowpeas for ample table use can be grown on 1/2 acre.

Adequate sorghum, which is the best sweet for growing children, can be produced on 1/2 acre.

Sweet potatoes, rich in food value, can be supplied from 1/2 acre.

Pumpkins with corn will add to the food supply and are good for pies and preserving.

One-eighth acre planted to peanuts will furnish a lot of rich food.

Food supply may be provided with small amount of seed.

Two acres of corn, any variety, can be planted with 2 pecks of seed.

Bunch varieties of cowpeas sufficient for 1/2 acre can be grown from one peck of seed.

Two to 3 pounds of sorghum seed of medium or late varieties are sufficient to plant 1/2 acre.

One-half acre of Nancy Hall or Porto Rico potatoes can be produced from 5,000 slips.

Five to 6 pounds of white Spanish peanuts in shell are adequate to plant one-eighth acre.

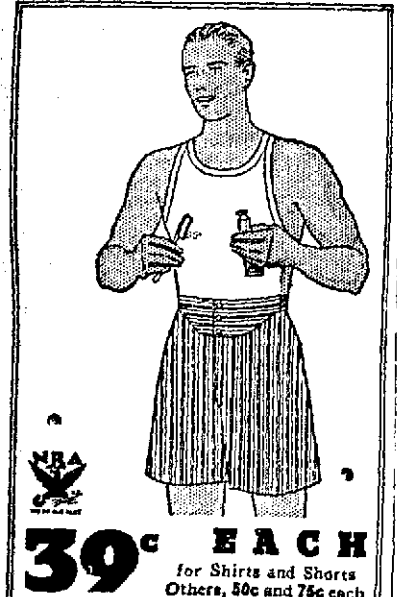

One ounce of pumpkin seed, planted with corn, is sufficient for pie pumpkins.

University Commencement Begins June 2

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark.—Exercises for the 60th annual Commencement at the University of Arkansas will be held in the Chi Omega Greek Theater on the campus June 3 and 4. The Most Rev. Francis C. Kelley, bishop of Oklahoma City and Tulsa, will deliver the Baccalaureate sermon Sunday evening, and John Temple Graves II, a member of the editorial staff of the Age-Herald at Birmingham, Ala., will give the Commencement address Monday evening.

The 1934 Commencement exercises mark the close of Dr. John C. Futrell's twentieth years as president of the University and his fourth year on the University faculty. Dr. Futrell ranks as one of the nation's oldest University heads from the standpoint of length of service. He has served terms as president of the National Association of Land Grant Colleges and Universities and of the National Association of State Universities. Bishop Kelley, the Baccalaureate speaker, founded and was first president of the Catholic Church Extension Society of the United States. He founded and for many years was editor of the Extension Magazine.

Mr. Graves is a lecturer, editor and author. He has had editorial experience on a number of the leading newspapers in the country. During the World War he served as a second lieutenant, and later was an assistant on the American Peace Commission in Paris.

DOANNA of the BIG TOP by BEULAH POYNTER

BEGIN HERE TODAY. DONNA GABRIEL and MADLINE SIDDA who call themselves "The Gabriel Sisters" are circus performers. When Donna is injured by a fall from the trapeze Madeline arranges for her to be taken to GRANDPATER SIDDA's farm to recuperate. To please her partner Donna pretends to be Madeline's cousin, and is taken to the farm. Madeline is a circus animal trainer with the circus and takes part in the animal act.

Donna and Bill are married. Mrs. PLANTER, housekeeper discharged by Donna, is her enemy. Grandfather Sid da has a stroke and Donna writes Madeline about his illness.

The circus is in New Orleans. Con tells Madeline she must go into the cage alone with Lucy, the tiger, during the evening performance.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXV

CONTRARY to expectations, Renfro was not at all enthusiastic about Madeline going into the cage alone with Lucy.

"I don't trust that beast," the circus owner said. "I never have, and I never will. Oh, I know Madeline has been working with the cat for several weeks but, just the same, she's afraid of her. If she should suddenly lose her nerve—"

"But she won't," Con protested. "Why, you've seen for yourself how well Lucy behaves now. Madeline can handle her as well as I can."

Renfro shook his head. "I'm not afraid that anything will happen when you're in the cage, Con. With Madeline it's different. An accident now would ruin our business here and, God knows, we need the business."

Con laughed. "Then what are you complaining about? This act will get business for you. It's going to be a sensation! Give the crowd some real thrills and watch them flock in!"

There was an air of hushed suspense in the big tent an hour later when the striped tentacles and their larger, less ferocious cousins, the lions, fled in through the wooden enclosure and took their places in the huge steel cage.

Madeline stood near at hand and watched Con go through the act that had first won her admiration.

The great spotlight shone on Con. Madeline's slender, yellow-clad figure was in the shadows. But when, just before the finish of the usual routine, Con paused and announced that Miss Gabriel would put the tigress through her paces, the glowing light swung about and fell directly on Madeline.

PERHAPS at that moment Con had a premonition of what was to happen. Perhaps he felt a twinge of conscience or a spark of tenderness toward the girl who stood beside him. He leaned to ward her and whispered, "If you're afraid, Honey, we'll call the whole thing off."

Madeline raised her shadowed eyes to his, a bitter smile twisting her lovely, rouged lips. "I'll go out in a blaze of glory," she said. She was thinking that this was to be her farewell appearance with the circus. As soon as the act was over she would tell Con that she was "jumping" the show, that she was through with him and with Renfro's circus forever.

The door of the cage was opened then and, armed only with a whip, Madeline slid through the aperture. Spectators held their breath. The big tent that had been hushed before seemed utterly still and silent.

There were men on guard outside armed with revolvers but few of the watchers knew that. Lucy stood in the center of the cage, her yellow eyes meeting Madeline's, the graceful feline body crouched low.

Step by step, the girl advanced, speaking softly. "On the chair, Lucy. On the chair."

Suddenly a man in a sent just behind the first row arose to his feet. He gave a low, mirthless laugh and called out in a voice that penetrated the entire tent. "Go to it, Baby! I said I'd be here and here I am!"

Unmindful of her danger, Madeline turned. She saw Trafford, standing in the second row, and caught the leering grin on his face. It was at that instant—while her attention wavered—that the tigress leaped.

The rest happened so swiftly—a vivid splash of orange and white and black shooting through the air, the blood-curdling scream and the great beast bearing the slender body to the ground—that the horrified spectators were gripped in complete inactivity by the shock.

EVEN the men on guard to prevent accidents were too stunned to move. Con cried out, "Good God!" and tore at the fastenings of the door. Perhaps because he jerked so violently, the lock caught and jammed. Then a shot rang out. The tigress sprang into the air, gave a dying groan and fell back across the mutilated, bleeding body of the girl.

Con tore open the door of the cage and reached his wife. As he lifted her small figure in his gay flimsy of yellow and purple his voice could be heard above the tumult crying, "Who the devil shot the tiger?"

Madeline was still breathing as Con carried her across the arena to the nearest dressing room, which was La Belle Matilde's, but it was obvious that life was ebbing fast. A doctor who had been in the audience and witnessed the tragedy offered his services. It took only the briefest examination before he told them the girl had only a few moments to live.

Meanwhile Trafford, the man who had caused the accident, slipped out of the tent unnoticed, sobered by what he had done and discovering that revenge was not sweet. He lingered near the entrance to the grounds waiting to hear whether Madeline lived or died.

For the first time in his career Renfro forgot that "the show must go on." The accident in which Donna had been injured had been bad enough, but Donna had been torn and mangled and certain to die. A merciful God could not let Madeline linger long.

When the spectators, in a body, rose and left the big top Renfro made no effort to stop them. There was no announcement that the girl was not badly injured and that the performance would continue. The circus owner was too shocked to think or to care what happened next.

Renfro was a simple soul—a kindly, generous man at heart. Though ambitious and somewhat mercenary, he had always placed human life before financial gain.

He had heard Con demanding to know who had killed the tiger, and dull, cold contempt filled him. To think that a man, carrying his wife who was unquestionably dying in his arms, could even think of the brute that had destroyed her!

AS Con stepped back from the couch where he had placed Madeline the circus owner said hoarsely, "You've killed her, Con. I didn't want her to go into that cage, and you know it. You sent her to her death!"

"Nobody's blaming you," Con hiccupped.

"And you're through," Renfro added. "Whether she lives or dies, you're through."

Con's lips were distorted in a grimace that was intended to be a smile. "Thanks," he said. "So you'd kick a man when he's down. But with my best animal dead and my wife—"

"Your best animal!" snapped Renfro. "I wish I'd shot the damned beast myself! To think that you 'an mention that cat in the same breath with your dying wife!"

"Please gentlemen—" the doctor protested.

Both men stopped talking. There was a moment's silence and then the faintest murmuring came from the couch. "Con," Madeline said softly, "Con—"

He knelt beside her and her fluttering fingers stroked his cheek. "Kiss me, Con," the girl whispered. "I loved you so much. If you don't forgive me I—"

He pressed his own against it in an agony of contrition. Only when her lips grew cold and her tortured breathing ceased did he draw back. Then, like one suddenly stricken blind, Con David stumbled out of the little room, out of the run-way and into the open air.

Lurching drunkenly, he made his way through the alley where the concession stands were grouped, past the sidewalk of freaks, the peanut and lemonade vendors to the exit from the grounds.

It was the irony of fate that he should be the one to inform Ned Trafford of Madeline's death. But Con did not know who the man was who accosted him. The animal trainer's dimmed, blood-shot eyes saw only the bulk of a man in the shadows. He did not recognize Trafford's voice.

"How is she?" the man in the shadows asked.

"Dead! Dead!" Con answered. He staggered on toward the city, still wearing his costume of yellow and purple. Yellow had been the color that Madeline had feared. She had said that it brought bad luck!

Official Resigns in "Spoils" Probe

H. J. Abbott Quits as Michigan Internal Revenue Collector

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Horatio J. Abbott, a Democratic National Committeeman, resigned Tuesday as collector of internal revenue for Michigan after an official investigation into charges that his employees had solicited political funds.

His resignation was written after several hours of conference in the office of Secretary Morgenthau.

One of the charges involved sale of postmasterhips in Michigan. Postmaster General Farley said the matter was under investigation.

The charges named John Tighe, an Internal Revenue employee, as having sought funds from the Packard Motor Car Company, and George Woods, a former employee of Abbott, as soliciting money elsewhere. Tighe's case still is under consideration.

Abbott's resignation climaxed a hurried trip to Washington with Stephen B. Gibson, assistant secretary of the Treasury, and Wright Matthews, deputy commissioner of internal revenue. Gibson and Matthews spent Monday in Detroit investigating for Morgenthau.

Another inquiry was begun Tuesday by Louis R. Glavis, Interior Department chief investigator, into charges that an attempt had been made to obtain money to lobby for Michigan Public Works funds. Secretary Ickes said he had ordered the investigation but that there was no implication that he believed the charges.

"I'm inclined to see red at remote suggestions that money is needed to grease the skids for Public Works funds," he said.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep...Vigor...Vitality

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. They should pour out thru the bladder 8 pints of fluid a day.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 8 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS.

A doctor's prescription . . . which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes. Your common sense will tell you that this is impossible. Treatments of this nature may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS . . . the old reliable relief that contains no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-McBurg Co.
